"LADY'S CHAIN."

"Petticoats are to be longer than last year, and are to be held up by chains of ebony, fastened to the wrist by steel locks. Large and heavy brass rings are to be suspended by chains from the waist behind."—Le Follet.

Why ebony fetters, steel locks,
And brass rings hang from chains round the waist,
For the belles who dog Fashion, as flocks
On the track of the bell-wether haste?

Is't that Fashion's fair slaves, not content
With paging their hard tyrant's heels,
To hickey her triumph are sent,
Thus chained to Madame's chariot-wheels

'Twixt "hung-man" and "hang-man" confusion
Results, when the practice obtains,
To have charms that should do execution,
Made to suffer it, thus "hung in chains."

"Chain-mail" in old time kept the field;
Must "chain-female" now find its abettors,
Till to "Chaine des Dames" all figures yield,
And all pas-seul's are hornpipes in fetters?

Or is it that Fashion, run frantic,
Thus expiates failure of brains,
As, when lunacy dared to be antic,
In old times, 'twas clapped into chains?

But as now our instruction is bettered,
And we treat the insane with compassion,
When no other lunatic's fettered,
Why in chains bind the poor fools of Fashion?

Now jupes, we see closely must sit,
En fourreau from the waist to the feet,
And what can strait petticoats fit
So well as strait waistcoats, en suite?

Then let Fashion her edict send forth,
Through the allies of Vanity Fair,
That her lieges, East, West, South and North,
Chains may drop, if strait waistcoats they'll wear.

—Punch.

THOUGHTS AT GETTYSBURG.

BY J. WARREN WATSON.

When on the war befreighted air
Rings out martial trumpets blare;
When timing to the fife's shrill notes
Each silken banner proudly floats;
When in dark battle-lines array'd
With waving plume and flashing blade,
Each burns with patriotic fire—
Ten thousand eyes emiting fire!

When 'mid the cannon's murky breath,
The mounted squadron faces death,
And foot-battalions onward sweep,
Like rolling billows of the deep,
To join the conflict wild.
Though he who dies 'midst smoke and flame
May be immortalized by fame,
God help his wife and child!

The Fatal Card.

Some years ago the Mississippi River was famous for its "floating palaces" as the large steamers plying between New Orleans and the ports above were called. Now the railroads have driven nearly all the fine boats off the river, and left the field to the freight boat, whose accommodations for passengers are by no means palatial. The finer class of steamers were in many respects delightful, but they never ceased to be objects of dread to timid people, for if the racing, which was on that stream reduced to a system, did not result in the loss of the boat, there was sure to be one or more encounters between the more lawless portion of the travelers, in which pistol bullets would fly rather too thick for the comfort of steady going people. The cause of such disturbance was generally a quarrel over the gaming table. The regulation of the boats usually required that all such amusements should be conducted in a saloon provided for that purpose in the "Texas," "officers' cabin," situated on the hurricane deck, but the sporting gentlemen were by no means careful to observe this rule, and the gaming was most commonly carried on at the dining table, in the main saloon of steamer, to the great annoyance of two-thirds of those on board.

Many professional gamblers used to make these boats their home, traveling back and forth with them, fleecing all who were foolish and verdant enough to fall into their clutches. So well, indeed, was the system managed that the various members seemed to have their different steamers marked out for them by common consent, so that no one would trespass upon the domains of the other. Of course these men were warm friends of the officers of the boat, who were either too sincere in their friendship to put a stop to the practice, or too much afraid of the gamblers to care to provoke a quarrel with them, for in those days it was a common affair for such men to resent any fancied insult with a pistol shot.

One of the most remarkable men of this class, was named Daniel Sturdivant, a Frenchman, the son of a broken down scion of nobility who had settled in New Orleans before the transfer of Louisania to the United States. Sturdivant had been raised as a "gentleman" by his aristocratic father, but on coming of age, and finding his fortune very bad, had taken to cards as a means of bettering them. His success in this field was so great that he was induced to continue it, until at the time of which I write he was one of the most notorious gamblers between St. Louis and New Orleans. He was a man of fine personal appearance, and of great physical strength. He was also noted for his personal courage. As a gambler he was most expert and successful. There were dark stories of deeds which he had committed while under the influence of play and liquor, and it was said by some that he had killed half a dozen men in his life-time. Yet no one dared to speak these stories openly, for no one cared to bring upon himself the anger of such a man. There were few who knew him that really cared to play against him, but they feared that a refusal to do so might involve them in a quarrel with him, and rarely declined his invitation.

About fifteen years ago, the time of which I write, he had attached himself to one of the magnificent steamers plying between New Orleans and Vicksburg, and had publicly announced his determination to shoot any man who encroached upon his scene of operations. Of course this left him in undisputed possession of the field, and he reaped a golden harvest during the one brief year he conducted his operations there.

It was my lot at that time to be compelled to make frequent trips between New Orleans and Vicksburg, being heavily engaged in cotton speculations. I preferred the steamer of which Sturdivant had taken possession, inasmuch as it was not only the most comfortable, but also the swiftest, and time was of the utmost importance to me. It was known that I carried large sums of money, and I was always apprehensive lest Sturdivant should ask me to play. I had fully made up my mind to refuse him, and if he attempted to draw me into a quarrel, to shoot him without mercy, as I knew that the only chance for my life lay in getting the advantage of him. Strange to say, he did not make any such proposition to me, and I gave him no chance to do so.

One night we had started out from Vicksburg, and were heading out merrily down the river, when Sturdivant came up to the group which had gathered around the stove. He had been drinking, and was smoking a fine cigar as he approached. All made way for him.

"Well, gentleman," he said in an unsteady tone, "you seem to be terribly dull. Who wants to play for twenty dollars ante?"

There was no reply. All present seemed to know the man, and no one cared to volunteer to place himself in his clutches.

"Umph!" he exclaimed, with an expression of contempt, "afraid to try your luck with Dan Sturdivant, eh? Or may be you want a little coaxing. Some of you must play with me. I can't stand such treatment. Come, let's see who it shall be."

He glanced around the crowd as if to select his victim. For the first time I noticed the gaze of one of the group fixed steadily upon him. He was a stranger to me, and dressed in a plain suit of home-spun, and his face was partially concealed by a broad brimmed sombrero which was drawn down over it. He was a small, but powerfully made man, and in the decided expression of his well shaped hand, I read an unusual firmness and intensity of purpose.

"Are you Daniel Sturdivant, the gambler?" he asked in a calm tone without rising.

Sturdivant flashed darkly, and gave the stranger a dark glance.

"Some persons call me so behind my back," he said insolently, "but no one would care to apply that term to me before my face."

"Nevertheless," said the stranger, "I want an answer—yes or no."

"Well, then, I am," said the gambler angrily, "what of it?"

"Simply this," replied the stranger, "I have heard it said that you claim to be the best card player in the Southwest. I have come two hundred miles to prove you a liar."

Sturdivant strode forward a step or two, and thrust his hand into his breast as if to grasp a weapon.

"Stop," said the stranger, "if you shoot me you will simply prove yourself afraid of me. Take your seat at the table, and I will make my words good."

There was something in the calm, stern manner of the stranger that seemed to render the gambler powerless. He hesitated a moment and then said bullyingly:

"I never play with a man whose face I cannot see."

"Never mind my face," said the stranger. "If you are not afraid of losing, you shall see it when I am done with you."

"But how do I know that you have money enough for such sport?" persisted Sturdivant. "You look seedy enough my fine fellow."

"There," said the stranger, producing a large pocketbook, "I have ten thousand dollars there. If you can win it you shall do so."

With an oath Sturdivant placed himself at the table and bade his challenger do likewise. Those of us who had listened to this singular dialogue, now gathered around the table, expecting to see a scene of more than usual interest. The stranger had not yet raised his hat brim, and none of us had seen his face but we all felt from his general air and manner that Sturdivant had at last met his match. It did not take long to show us that the stranger was an unusually good player. For an hour more the playing went on in silence. The stakes were high and the contest marked with rare skill. Sturdivant exerted himself as he had never done before, but in spite of all this he lost steadily. By the expiration of the time indicated above, he had lost over two thousand dollars. I noticed the flush upon his face deepen, and a strange light come into his eyes. At last with an exclamation of triumph he drew towards him the heap of notes.

"That was well done," said the stranger. "You are expert at cheating. But go on. I can beat you whether you play openly or dishonestly."

Sturdivant said nothing but deal't the cards again. The hand was played, and Sturdivant was about to seize the stakes again, when the stranger laid down a card and checked him. The gambler uttered a sharp cry and sat motionless with his eyes fixed on the card: a worn and faded ace of hearts with a dark stain across the face. Sturdivant's face worked convulsively as he gazed at it, and the spectators gathered more closely around the two, wondering at the strange scene.

"In God's name, who are you?" asked Sturdivant, with his eyes still fixed on the card.

"Look at me," said the stranger quietly. As if powerless to resist, Sturdivant raised his eyes to the speaker.

The stranger had raised his hat and sat looking at the trembling man with eyes which fairly blazed with fury. Sturdivant uttered a groan and sank back in his chair with his face white and rigid. The stranger with one sweep gathered up the money from the table and thrust into his bosom.

"The ace of hearts is an unlucky card for you, Daniel Sturdivant," he said coldly. "You played it once when you thought it to your advantage. Now, God help you, for that play is returned."

As he spoke he raised a pistol which we had not seen, and before we could stop him, aimed it deliberately at the trembling man, and fired. The gambler fell heavily upon the table a corpse; and the bright blood streamed over it, hiding the fatal card from sight.

"Gentlemen," said the stranger, rising to his feet as we stood paralyzed with horror at the dreadful scene; "that man ruined my wife and tried to murder me. I have been hunting for him for ten years."

He walked slowly by us down the stairway to the lower deck. Just then as the steamer touched at a landing, he sprang ashore and vanished in the dark woods.

I never learned the history of the mysterious affair, for the dead gambler was beyond human questioning; and I never saw the stranger again; but I shall not soon forget the impression it made on me at the time.

The Sagacity of the Dog.

The second of the two dog stories we are about to narrate, says "All the Year Round," was so graphically and simply told to us a short time ago by the owner of the dog, a Bavarian gentleman resident in England, that with his kind permission we give it notice to the public.

We had been speaking of the wonderful manner in which instinct in all animals appears to develop from constant and intimate association with man, and had mentioned a case of a dog belonging to a friend of the gallant General Sir George Napier, who had been taught by his master to refuse all food presented to him with the left hand. On one occasion when Sir George Napier (who had lost his right arm at the storming of Ciudad Rodrigo) dined at his friend's house, the guests were amusing themselves by tempting the well-bred dog to lower his high standard of etiquette. All in vain. Not one of seven gentlemen present could tempt him to accept any dainty, however savory, from the left hand, though he eagerly ate food presented with the right hand. On Sir George Napier offering food with his left and only hand, however, the dog glanced at the General's empty sleeve, and without further hesitation accepted the gift. The experiment was tried again and again, but the animal's discrimination was never at fault.

Now comes the Bavarian gentleman's anecdote: On Wednesday, the twenty-seventh of June, eighteen hundred and sixty-six, Mr. Otto Striedinger, a gentleman connected with the Royal Victoria Hospital at Netley, went with two friends to a croquet party at Westend, about five miles from Netley. He was accompanied, as usual, by his favorite dog Worry—a magnificent black retriever. The weather being exceedingly hot, the croquet did not begin before four o'clock, and was followed by a supper; so that it was ten o'clock before the party broke up. The three gentleman then walked back to Netley in the dusk. The footpath by which they returned led through a private park, and across a common overgrown with heather. When about a mile from Netley, the walkers passed a reservoir, which supplies the hospital with water. The night being hot, and close, Mr. Striedinger wished to give his dog a swim. He whistled again and again; but no Worry came; so he made up his mind that the dog had been hunting for his own private amusement and had lost the track, as there was very little scent on the ground. Worry's master did not trouble himself about his whereabouts, as he had been for years a very independent dog, quite up to taking care of himself, and would doubtless find his way home. Mr. Striedinger arrived at the hospital and was preparing to go to bed, when he remembered that he had to answer two letters which he had received by that afternoon's post, just as he was starting with his friend for Westend. These letters were of great importance, and when Mr. Striedinger had looked for them without success, he felt extremely uncomfortable. He instituted a search all over his rooms, turned his writing desk topsy turvy, looked through his desk, but all in vain. He then took a light and had a hunt in every nook and corner of his office, but came back empty-handed. Thoroughly tired and discomposed, he went to bed. Unable to sleep, he got up in the middle of the night and made another and fruitless search. At last the morning sun began to light up the rooms, which was a signal for fresh investigation, with the same result. Then, and not before, the idea struck him that the letters, having been delivered as he was starting for the croquet party, he must have read them on the way thither, and must have put them in his coat pocket; but when he thrust his hand into the pocket, and drew it back empty, he felt convinced that the letters were lost beyond all chance of recovery. Hoping against hope, however, he resolved to make one more effort.

He rushed off, unshaven and unkempt, to retrace his steps of the previous day, looking right and left, turning over every scrap of paper he saw lying on the road, stopping wherever he recollected that he and his companions had stopped the day before, mistaking every object that was conspicuously light in distance for the papers, and growing more and more despairing every minute. After walking on for about three miles he espied a black object lying close to the footpath. I was Worry's black head. Reproaching himself for having in his unasiness forgotten his favorite, he whistled to Worry, who, however, instead of showing his usual alacrity, remained lying motionless on the ground. His owner supposed him to be caught in one of the snares with which he knew the common to be thickly studded; but, on his approaching Worry, up jumped his dog, leaving exposed to Mr. Striedinger's delighted view the missing letters, together with a number of other loose papers.

There had been a very heavy dew that night, and Worry's curly coat was as wet as if he had had an hour's swim in the neighboring reservoir; but the papers were as dry, hot, and crisp as a breakfast roll out of a baker's oven. There were marks of teeth on one or two of them, showing that either before having had resourse to his subsequent and successful expedient for preserving his master's property, Worry had endeavored to collect and carry the scattered manuscripts, or, which is more probable, that he had—finding them too numerous to allow of his acting on his retrieving instincts—brought all the outlying letters within reach of the shelter of his outstretched body. It was now eight o'clock. This devoted dog had been on guard over these papers sixteen hours, even since the friends went to Westend, at about four o'clock on Wednesday afternoon. It must have been then, and not on the return to Netley, that Mr. Striedinger dropped his letters, for they fell out of a breast-pocket of the coat, which he hung over his arm when walking in the sultry heat of the afternoon, but which he wore on his way home at night, when it would be impossible for the contents of the pocket to escape. The gentlemen in returning must have made some slight deviation from the path by which they had gone, and in this manner must have missed the sentinel, Worry.

Questions for a Wife.

Do you recollect what your feelings were immediately after you had spoken the first unkind word to your husband? Did you not feel ashamed and grieved, and yet to proud to admit it? That was, is, and ever will be your evil genius! It is the tempter which labors incessantly to destroy your peace, which cheats you with an evil decision that your husband deserved your anger, when he really most required your love. It is the canker which feeds on those unspeakable emotions you felt on the first pressure of his hand and lip. Never forget the manner in which the duties of that calling can alone be fulfilled. If your husband is hasty, your example of patience will chide as well teach him. Your violence may alienate his heart, and your neglect impel him to desperation. Your soothing will redeem him—your sofiness subdues him; and the good natured twinkle of those eyes, now filling beautifully with priceless tears, will make him all your own.

THE DEFEAT.

We have met the enemy and are theirs. Routed, horse and foot, baggage captured. All but honor, gone up salt river. A division of our army wheeled into the enemy's ranks and kept up a steady fire at their best friends all day long. Farewell revised constitution of 1867. You had some bright features. Manhood suffrage was the golden hue, the grandest expression. The exemption clause, the unfortunate man's friend, the humane protector of the wife, mother and children was another blessed feature. But you had some ugly spots. A few shrewd Democrats in the Convention aided to load you down to the waters edge with rotton timber. At least a good many Republicans thought so. Salaries were piled on as it its builders supposed Michiganders rich. The fact is we are a very POOR people. And it would be a heinous crime to give our governor more than $1000 per annum. A poor man is not fit to hold office any way. He has no business thinking of such a thing. Its honors are not for him. If our poor men or their sons want to be governor they must first accumulate a fortune. Henceforth in Michigan let the word go forth: Rich men, and rich men only, can afford to hold office. Fifth rate or old granny lawyers for judges. Thank the Lord we Republicans have a few rich men, enough to hold the offices. The other side have no use for rich men. For it is not as hard for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of heaven as for a modern Democrat, rich or poor, to get a State office at the hands of the people of Michigan. The people must not think of building rail roads in Michigan. It will do for foreign capitalists, but not for the people. Who says so? Why, the dear people. And we must and we gladly bow to their majestic will.

Well! we leave the constitution, got up at an expenditure of $100,000, in its lonely grave. "There are none so poor as to do it reverence." The Democratic party being the sexton, accompanied by 60,000 Republican pall bearers. We true blue radicals wash our hands of its death and with innocent hands and clean hearts turn to a brighter future. We died game on the constitution. In reference to its main principle, manhood suffrage, we yield not an ell. Standing on the grave of the revised constitution, we swear in the name of the God of our Fathers and our God to renew the conflict for equal rights in Michigan. "Equal and exact justice to all men." By this sign we shall YET conquer. Victory is as certain as that God lives, the sun rolls its diurnial rounds, truth in the world in the long run triumphs. The very next Legislature will submit this issue to the people, and the next spring election, untrammeled by any dead weights it will receive the suffrages of the people of Michigan. The Democracy have gone in for a continued agitation of this question, and as professed agitators for truth and justice and right, we will give it to them to their heart's content.

IMPEACHMENT.

The prosecution has closed up and presents a very strong case. The defense began Thursday. The trial is being pushed to a speedy termination.

ELECTION RETURNS.

The State has gone easily 25,000 against the Constitution. Prohibition probably a small majority. Biennial sessions almost unanimous. Washtenaw county not far from 2,000 against the constitution. The Democrats have the Board of Supervisors— 16 Democratic, a gain of four. The Board will stand sixteen Democratic to nine Republicans. Four towns only went for the Constitution—Ann Arbor Town, Ypsilanti Town, Pittsfield and Salem. Ann Arbor city elected a Republican Mayor by about 200 majority, and about the same against the Constitution. Saline 101 against the Constitution; Democratic majority on town officers 14. York elected Peter Cook (republican) supervisor by 20 majority.

RETURNS OF THE ELECTION IN THE CITY OF YPSILANTI.

Mayor, Hiram Batchelder (rep) 465; P. Davis, (dem.) 507—41 maj.; City Clerk, S. C. Noble, (rep.) 447; J. W. Babbitt, (dem.) 520—73 majority; Supervisor, 1st district, Lee Yost, (rep.) 294—49 maj.; P. Bennett, (dem.) 245; Supervisor, 2d district, S. E. Hudson, (rep.) 161; John Gilbert, (dem.) 266—105 maj.; Constable 1st district, George G. Sherwood (rep.) 319—99 maj.; Wm. C. Avres, (dem.) 220; Constable, 2d district, James P. Dickinson, (rep.) 160; John W. Forsyth, (dem.) 270—110 maj.; Alderman, 1st Ward, Samuel Barnard (rep.) 80; F. P. Bogardus, (dem) 95—15 maj; 2d Ward, Austin Guild, (rep.) 90—11 maj; J. W. Smith, 79; 3d Ward, Martin Gray, (rep.) 125—54 maj.; D. B. Rorison, (dem.) 71; 4th Ward, O. E. Thompson (rep.) 92; S. A. Durand, (dem.) 96—4 maj.; 5th Ward, Josiah Newell, (rep.) 65; James M. Forsyth (dem.) 174—109; For the new Constitution, 390; Against the new Constitution 555—165 maj.; For Biennial Sessions, 644—596 maj.; For Annual Sessions, 48; Prohibition, "Yes," 468—56 maj.; Prohibition, "No," 412.

T. D. Lane is elected Supervisor in Salem. Majority for Constitution, 27. Ypsilanti township has re-elected E. D Lay, Supervisor, rep., by 111 majority. Pittsfield, Allan Crittenden. York has elected Republican officers all the way through. Though we are beaten in the Board, only nine Supervisors, we shall have strong men. Allan Crittenden, T. D. Lane, E. D. Lay, Peter Cook, and Lee Yost, a new member from this city. Ever true and reliable Republicans. John Gilbert of this city, an old member, will be the leading Democrat in the Board. He is a capital Supervisor. Augusta re-elects Aaron Childs, though a Democrat, an old and useful member. Canton, Van Buren and Sumpter, our neighbors in Wayne county, are all Democratic. Though on town officers the Republicans are steadily gaining year by year.

MAYOR, CITY CLERK, &C.

While we esteem the Mayor elect we sincerely deplore the defeat of our nominee, Hiram Batchelder. He is a very popular man in our city and worthy of the esteem that his fellow citizens cheerfully accord him. We would have guaranteed his election by from 25 to 50 majority last Saturday night. Also the election of the City Clerk. Noble is a first rate fellow and they all say he made an excellent Clerk. Mr. O. E. Thompson, Republican candidate for Alderman in the 4th ward only defeated by 4 votes, and 11 Republicans away from home. Too bad. Mr. Thompson would have made a first class Alderman. Friend Durand, his successful competitor, the last Democratic Alderman in the ward, will do well. S. Barnard, Republican, in the 1st ward, was defeated by Frank Bogardus, and friend Barnard would have taken it to heart if any one else but Frank had whipped him. As it is he is comforted. The City Board stands 6 Republicans to 4 Democrats.

CONNECTICUTT.

The Democracy have re-elected English, governor, by 1650 majority. But the Republicans have the substantial victory. The Legislature being Republican gives us a U. S. Senator, in place of the renegade Dixon.

Hon. L. D. Norris

Made an able speech last Saturday evening in Hewitt Hall, against the constitution. He predicted that the eyes of Republicans would bung out when the election news came in. A true prophet for once at least.

MR. EDITOR.—I send you the number of deaths for the first quarter of this year: Children four; adults six—aggregate, ten, which is about one death to 125 persons per annum. DAVID COON.

Advertising.

The New York Herald has some excellent remarks upon the change which has been and is being wrought of late years in the character of the advertising columns of the lively daily press. Referring, and very properly, to itself as the leading exemplar of the change, it contends that the contrast between the advertisements in the Herald of to-day and those of a favorite journal at the time the career of the Herald began, when it was the common fashion for advertisers to put in half a column for a year, "illustrates at once the growth of city and country, the progress of thought, the diffusion of knowledge, the rapidity, impulse, freedom and ease with which society moves." Drawing the contrast it says:

"Advertising columns were a sort of picturesque desert to the reader. He saw the rows of minature effigies of delinquent apprentices advertised as runaways; he saw pictured the dog that had been lost, the ships that were sailing, the houses that were to let; but it was all the same for weeks. He looked over the announcement of so many quintal of logwood, so much dry cod and other valuable articles for sale, and it was the same for a year. Now, however, one scarcely sees the same advertisement twice. An advertisement put once in the Herald accomplishes the advertiser's object; it sells his old sewing machine or his new piano; it puts him in immediate communication with the man he wants to see and for whom he has vainly hunted a year, till some one suggested the Herald personals; it gets him a servants or gets him a situation; in short, supplies almost any and every social and commercial want; for this one advertisement is seen and read by a half a million persons. Thus the range of its influence is practically illimitable, while any mere agent works in a comparatively narrow sphere. It is to the extent to which our citizens use the columns of the Herald as a means of intercommunication that gives these advertisements their great variety and peculiar personal and vital character. In this respect these advertisements are news—news of the most important kind, and that which is hardest to get."

There is a world of wisdom in the foregoing, to which advertisers would do well to give heed. A fresh advertisement secures attention, when an old one will be overlooked. A plan of constant changes gives variety to a paper and puts money in the advertiser's pocket.

The Rejected Stone.

The Rev. C. H. Spurgeon, of London, thus appropriates a well-known Masonic tradition:

I have heard a story—I cannot tell whether it is true or not—out of some of the Jewish rabbis; it is a tale concerning the text: "The stone which the builders refused, the same is become the headstone of the corner." It is said that when Solomon's temple was building, all the stones were brought from the quarry, ready cut and fashioned, and there were marked on all the blocks the places where they were to be put. Amongst the stones was a very curious one; it seemed of no describable shape, it appeared unfit for any portion of the building. They tried it at this wall, but it would not fit; they tried it in another, but it could not be accommodated; so, vexed and angry, they threw it away. The temple was so many years building that this stone became covered with moss, and grass grew around it. Everybody passing by laughed at the stone; they said Solomon was wise, and doubtless all the other stones were right; but as for that block, they might as well send it back to the quarry, for it was quite sure it was meant for nothing. Year after year rolled on, and the poor stone was still despised; the builders constantly refused it. The eventful day came when the temple was to be finished and opened, and the multitude was assembled to see the grand sight. The builders said, "Where is the top-stone? Where is the pinnacle?" They little thought where the crowning marble was, until some said, "Perhaps that stone which the builders refused is meant to be the top-stone." They then took it, and hoisted it to the top of the house; and as it reached the summit they found it well adapted to the place. Loud hosannas made the welkin ring, as the stone which the builders refused thus became the headstone of the corner. So it is with Christ Jesus. The builders cast him away. He was a plebian; he was a man of poor extraction; he was a man acquainted with sinners, who walked in poverty and meanness; hence the worldly-wise despised him. But when God shall gather together, in one, all things that are in heaven and that are in earth, then Christ shall be the glorious consummation of all things.

"Christ reigns in heaven the top-most stone,
And well deserves the praise."

He shall be exalted; he shall be honored; his name shall endure as long as the sun, and all nations shall be blessed in him, yea, all generations shall call blessed.

—Has Nature an antidote for acquired diseases? The Plantation Bitters, prepared by Dr. Drake, of New York, have no doubt benefitted and cured more persons of Dyspepsia, Nervousness, Sour Stomach, Loss of Appetite, Sinking Weakness, General Debility, and Mental Despondency, than any other article in existence. They are composed of the purest roots and herbs, carefully prepared, to be taken as a tonic and gentle stimulant. They are adapted to any age or condition of life, and are extensively popular with mothers and persons of sedentary habits. 211-2 w

OUR THREE YEARS OLD BOY.—The Silver Tea-Spoon, and what he did with it.—It is always in order and ready to run. Our three years old boy used it daily as a plaything, running everything he could get hold of through it, without injuring it in the least. One day he took a silver tea-spoon and run the handle through, the needle going straight through it, without breaking or bending. We know however, that Sewing Machines are not made to be made to be tested in this manner, and should not be left for children to play with. We have used other Machines, and have used yours two years. The others have their excellencies and merits for certain classes of work, but for family sewing we think they cannot be compared with yours. We would be glad to know that one of your Machines was in every family of the Union.—(Rev. J. B. Pittman, Pastor Baptist Church Mattea-wan, N. Y., to the Wilcox & Gibbs S. M. Co.

CLEANSE THE BLOOD.

WITH corrupt, or tainted Blood, you are sick all over. It may burst out in Pimples or sores, or in some active disease, or it may merely keep you listless, depressed and good for nothing. But you cannot have good health while your blood is impure. Ayer's Sarsaparilla purges out these impurities; it expels disease and restores health and stimulates the organs of life into vigorous action. Hence it rapidly cures a variety of complaints which are caused by impurity of the blood, such as Scrofula, or King's Evil, Tumors, Ulcers, Sores Eruptions, Pimples, Blotches, Boils, St. Anthony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Tetter or Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Ring Worm, Cancer or Cancerous Tumors, Sore Eyes, Female Diseases, such as Retention, Irregularity, Suppression, Whites, Sterility, also Syphilis or Venereal Diseases, Liver Complaints, and Heart Diseases. Try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and see for yourself the surprising activity with which it cleanses the blood and cures these disorders.

During late years the public have been misled by large bottle, pretending to give a quart of Extract of Sarsaparilla for one dollar. Most of these have been frauds upon the sick, for they not only contain little, if any, Sarsaparilla, but often no curative ingredient whatever. Hence, bitter disappointment has followed the use of the various extracts of sarsaparilla which flood the market, until the name itself has become synonymous with imposition and cheat. Still we call this compound "Sarsaparilla," and intend to supply such a remedy as shall rescue the name from the load of obloquy which rests upon it. We think we have ground for believing it has virtues which are irresistible by the class of diseases it is intended to cure. We can assure the sick that we offer them the best alterative we know how to produce, and we have reason to believe, it is by far the most effectual purifier of the blood yet discovered.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is so universally known to surpass every other medicine for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Influenza, Hoarseness, Croup, Bronchitis, Incipient Consumption, and for the relief of Consumptive Patients in advanced stages of the disease, that it is useless here to recount the evidence of its virtues. The world knows them.

Prepared by DR. J. C. AYER & Co., Lowell, Mass., and sold by all Druggists and dealers in medicine everywhere. Agents wanted. April & May

HOW AN EDITOR FEELS WHEN NECESSARILY ABSENT FROM HOME AND IS LEFT BEHIND BY THE CARS.

Away from home election day. Reader, never, NEVER commit this unpardonable sin. We never tried it on but once and our pen fails to portray the indescribable emotions. Snakes in the boots, delirium tremens, not to be thought of in comparison. You know we are a person of some consequence. An Editor. By precept and example, time and again, we have exhorted our readers to work for their dear country at the polls. In our enthusiasm for the cause we have covered up a blemish on our building by electioneering mottoes. We had fought the good fight with unflinching ardor and shall we fail to consummate and crown our patriotic endeavors by loosing our vote? Heavens and earth! what dire calamities would result. We an Editor! If it had been our neighbor Toots, it would be of no particular consequence. No bones broken or crocodile tears shed. But we an Editor, and just imagine our feelings. The biggest race against time we ever ran since the days of our boyhood when we prided ourselves a little on such things. And then comes a trial of strength with a first-class freight engine. A live copperhead in the same fix at our side. In vain ye gallant few. The telegraph and steam horse are ahead of human legs, though spurred on by love of manhood rights and mortal hatred of the nigger. But then our comrade in misfortune was not an Editor. He could return to the saloon and drown his guilty conscience and his torturing thoughts in whiskey. For us poor prohibitionist there was no relief. On our naked soul we must endure the stripes. And hundreds of tongues, 30 miles away, will shout, where is that Editor? Won't the curses fall and loud and long fall on his pitiless head. Friends over the left, friends when the Editor can be used to subserve their personal ends, how they will howl, how they will boast "never a dollar of patronage to that Editor again, never, never more, never more." Just as though they had been accustomed to fill his pockets with patronage. He can't live above ground without our smiles, and we will let him know it. We will visit him in our wrath. And then revenge is sweet, what a priceless morsel it will afford us to say, "stop our paper." And then watch and see as a result the whole COMMERCIAL establishment go to smash, and be able to say, "we did it," "we did it." All this the Editor saw, and still more terrible scenes painted themselves on his vision. In that town 30 miles away, as a result of his absence, blackness and despair would gather over the hearts of men, the political horizon would be clouded in gloom. Two Aldermen would be defeated. A Democratic Mayor and City Clerk would be elected. The constitution would be buried out of sight. All these things hung like a pall over the poor Editor. The only consolation he could gather was at last they will find out, friend and foe, Republican and Democrat, that he is some pumpkins. Alas our fears were realized, that startling mental apparition proved only too true. We returned home to find the constitution in its last long sleep, doomed to perpetual forgetfulness. One of our best friends shut out from Aldermanic honors. Our nominee for Mayor badly whipped and all because of our absence. Our quondam friends, friends over the left, swearing terribly and friends over the right in a night mare, in a sad maze. Brother Editor—take warning by our sad experience and as you regard your life, your prospects in this world or the next, don't be away from home election day. Especially when only a little matter, a small estate of only $3000 hangs in the ballance. Don't try it on we pray you, for not one of your self-sacrificing readers would ever be guilty of such a horrible crime, and you will stand out the lone, sole monster in infamy.

Good News for Travelers.

Passengers for New York, Boston and New England cities, will be glad to learn that the Erie Railway Company is issuing First-Class Tickets to New York at $2 70 less than rival Lines. The present authorized rates of the Company are: From Dunkirk to New York, $8 00; Buffalo to New York, $7 00; and Salamanca to New York, $7 00. To secure the benefits of these reduced rates passengers should obtain tickets to Dunkirk, Buffalo or Salamanca, procure a ticket for the remainder of their journey, at the Erie Railway Company's Offices which are always open on the arrival of the trains of all Western and Southern Lines. The comfort and pleasure to be derived from a trip in one of those luxurious rolling palaces of the Erie Railway, aside from the astonishing low rates of fare, should induce our merchants and others to take this route when going to New York or New England, in preference to all others.

Prohibition.

The Temperance men did well and we believe prohibition is carried. It really amounts to nothing further than the moral effect, the constitution being defeated. There is not a doubt but that the temperance men largely played false to the constitution. The grievance, in reference to prohibition, not being placed in the body of the instrument was an immaginary one. We still remain of the opinion that it was the right course not to put it in, and we are ever ready to buckle on the armor and fight the great temperance battle to a consumation.

Success from Advertising.

Very few persons understand the value of printers ink better than H. T. Helmbold, the great advertiser of Fluid Extract of Buchu. There is hardly a paper on our editorial table but what contains a column or less of his advertisements. He is a living example of what a liberal use of money will do if one has the pluck and spirit to follow it up until it is a success. He has one of the finest stores on Broadway, and it is crowded with people who go there either to buy or inspect his mercantile palace. He extends an invitation to all to visit.

[Daily Journal, Boston, Mass.

E. D. Lay & Co.,

Are doing splendid'y with Dimick's Capilliary Balm. It goes off in New York and Chicago like hot cakes.

There is no business or branch of trade in which skill, knowledge and enterprise are more essential than in the drug business; nor is there any branch of human industry in which more charlatanism and imposture prevails. It is therefore to the interest of the public to carefully discriminate between the true and false druggist. This can easily be done by a simple practical application of that rule which is as true in matters of business as morals, "by their fruits (or results) you shall know them." Judged by this rule, Helmbold is a true druggist, and those well known medicines, known as "Helmbold's Preparations," are legitimate remedies. These latter have been before the public prominently for many years, and have been universally successful; the Extract of Buchu especially, has secured the public confidence. For its appropriate diseases it is without a rival.—Daily Tribune, N. Y.

Col. Henry C. Deming.

We are glad to learn that Col. Henry C. Deming, who was much distinguished in the last Congress for his eloquence and power in debate, and who was greatly instrumental in procuring the passage of the act creating the office of Lieutenant General, has been engaged for some time on a Life of General Grant.

The terms of intimacy and confidence which subsist between the eloquent author and Grant and his friends—Washburn, of Ill., Gov. Gates and others—give him greater facilities in his labor than any other writer could have.

Those who have seen portions of the manuscript speak of it as being written with great power and of absorbing interest.

This will probably be the Life of Grant for wide and general circulation. We learn that it will be published by S. S. Scranton & Co., Hartford, Ct., and the National Publishing Co., Cincinnati, Ohio.

FIVE YEARS' USE AND NO MISHAP.—Mr. G A. Clark, of Brownville, N. Y., writing under date of Jan. 12th, 1866, says: "Mrs Clark has done her family sewing on the Wilcox & Gibbs Machine for more than five years. She has work in the house done five years ago, which has been constantly more or less in use, and washed scores of times, but which she exhibits in as good condition as at the hour it was done. She has never had a rip; or a difficulty or mishap of any kind during the time."

May look in kindness on the earth,
In Tom Jones' veins no cheering warmth
Dispels the gloomy sorrow of his soul.

While Dullness, Vertigo, and Headache dire,
With fiercer aches combine to make him groan.

AN INVALUABLE MEDICINE
FOR THE PURIFYING OF THE BLOOD.

DR. J. W. POLAND'S

HUMOR DOCTOR.

A Positive Remedy for all kinds of Humors, PARTICULARLY

Erysipelas, Rettle-Rash, Salt Rheum, Scrofula, Carbuncles, Boils, and Piles.

It is very easy to say of this, or of any other medicine, "It is the very best remedy known." It is not always so easy to prove it. It is, however, exceedingly gratifying to the Proprietor of this medicine, that, while he delares to the public that this is a most wonderful and effective specific for Humors, as state I above, he has abundant proof at hand to sustain his statement.

For sixteen years the HUMOR DOCTOR has been manufactured and sold, and every year has increased the value of its reputation, and the amount of its sales. In New Hampshire, where it originated, no remedy for Humors is so highly prized. An eminent physician (now an army surgeon) when practicing in New Hampshire, purchased between fifty and sixty gallons of it, during some seven or eight years, and used it in his practice. He has since then ordered it for the hospital where he was stationed. Other physicians have purchased it, and have used it in practice with great success. When the Proprietor lived in New Hampshire, at Goffstown Centre, for the space of thirty or forty miles around, and in Manchester particularly, the HUMOR DOCTOR was well known and highly valued for the numerous and wonderful cures, which it effected. Though manufactured in large quantities the supply was frequently exhausted, and purchasers had to wait for more to be made. In that region some very severe cases of Erysipelas were treated with it—and they were cured! Erysipelas sores, or carbuncles, those ugly, painful ulcers, were entirely removed wherever this medicine was faithfully used. So it was with Scrofula and Salt Rheum. The HUMOR DOCTOR cured them.

For the sake of showing what is thought of it, a few testimonials are here inserted:

Milton Gale, Esq., Boston.

I hereby certify that I was sorely afflicted with Boils for two years, developing themselves upon my limbs and other parts of my body. The sufferings which I endured from them are indescribable. Suffice it to say that I faithfully tried several of the most popular humor remedies, but without removing the affliction. At length, by the earnest request of an intimate friend, I was induced to try Dr. J. W. Poland's Humor Doctor, and am very happy to attest that all my boils were removed, and my health was restored by using Dr. Poland's celebrated medicine.

BOSTON, Jan. 12, 1853. MILTON GALE.

Mrs. Wheeler, Stoneham, Mass.

I very confidently and earnestly recommend Dr. J. W. Poland's Humor Doctor as an excellent remedy for Humors, having been wonderfully benefited by it myself. My own case was a very severe and obstinate one. For more than two years the skin upon the inside of both my hands, and even down on the wrist, was constantly cracked and broken up, so that I was unable to use my hands in any kind of wet work, and was obliged to wear gloves in sewing to avoid getting blood upon my work. The humor which so afflicted me was probably a combination of Erysipelas and Salt Rheum. My general health was quite poor. Soon after I began to use the Humor Doctor I could perceive signs of healing. I continued to take the medicine till I was fully cured. My hands are now perfectly free from humors, and to all appearances my whole system is free of it, and has been for several months. I used eight bottles before I felt safe to give it up entirely, but they cured me.

HARRIET WHEELER.

STONEHAM, Mass., July 5, 1856.

Mrs. Porter, Dover, N. H.

DOVER, N. H., July 2d, 1855.

DR. POLAND: I received your letter inquiring as to the effects of your medicine on sea-sickness. I am happy to say that I think it is "the medicine" for that dreadful sickness. I tried various prescriptions, but found none that settled the stomach and cleared the head like the Humor Doctor. I felt as though I could hardly wait to get ashore, to entreat you to introduce it into ship chandlery stores, that it may find its way to those who suffer upon the mighty deep from sea-sickness. If capt ins who take their passages with them, or carry passengers, should try it for a voyage, they would never be willing to voyage without it.

Yours, HARRIET M. PORTER.

Much more might be stated in relation to this medicine, as contained in testimonials, but it is needless. Ask Manchester druggists about it, especially E. W. Blake, at Burr's. Inquire of Mr. Henry Plumer, of Bedford, whose wife was cured by it of Salt Rheum. Ask almost any person in Goffstown, and they will describe its value as a remedy, as used in their own cases or by their friends.

HALL'S
Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer

Has stood the test of seven years trial by the public; and no preparation for the hair yet discovered will produce the same beneficial results. It is a new scientific discovery, combining the most powerful and restorative agents in the VEGETABLE KINGDOM. It restores GRAY HAIR TO ITS ORIGINAL YOUTHFUL COLOR. It makes the scalp white and clean; cures dandruff and humors, and falling out of the hair; and will make it grow upon bald heads, except in very aged persons, as it furnishes the nutritive principle by which the hair is nourished and supported. It makes the hair moist, soft, and glossy, and is unsurpassed as a HAIR DRESSING. It is the cheapest preparation ever offered to the public, as one bottle will accomplish more and last longer than three bottles of any other preparation.

It is recommended and used by the First Medical Authority.

The wonderful results produced by our Sicilian Hair Renewer have induced many to manufacture preparations for the Hair, under various names; and in order to induce the trade and the public to purchase their compounds, they have resorted to falsehoods, by claiming they were former partners, or had some connection with our Mr. Hall, and their preparation was similar to ours. Do not be deceived by them! Purchase the original: it has never been equalled. Our Treatise on the Hair, with certificates, sent free by mail. See that each bottle has our private Revenue Stamp over the top of the bottle. All others are imitations.

Great United States Tea Warehouse
OF
T. Y. KELLEY & CO,
30 VESEY STREET, N. Y.

Are now supplying families throughout the United States with Teas, through the system of clubs and their regular appointed agents, at a slight advance on cargo prices and guaranteeing their Teas to be pure and fresh, and also to give entire satisfaction, or they can be returned and the money refunded.

The advantage of buying Teas from our Warehouse is, you save the various profits of Speculators, Brokers, Wholesale Tea Merchants, Jobbers, Wholesale Grocers and Retailers, which in the aggregate, amount to from 50 cents to $1 00 per pound, and also are sure of getting the same quality and standard every time.

Our standard goods all bear our Trade Mark on the lead, and no others are genuine. Parties will please bear this in mind, as our great success has induced some unprincipled parties in New York, Boston, and other places to imitate our style of putting up goods as near as they dare to—to entrap the unwary.

This brings our goods at the price they can be purchased over our counters, with the freight added. We solicit a fair and thorough trial. 104-6m

DR. S. I. TOBIAS'
PULMONIC LIFE SYRUP,
FOR THE CURE OF

INCIPIENT CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, Colds, Croup, Asthma, Liver Complaints, Dyspepsia and General Debility. For several years I have been urged by kind friends, who have used, and been benefitted by, my Life Syrup, to put it up for general sale; but few know the large expense, now that the country is flooded with Patent Medicine, which attend the same. For years past I was reluctant to do so, as the capital required would be large, and I do not wish to curtail the operations of my Venetian Liniment business. But, thanks to the generous public, who have appreciated my Venetian Liniment I am now able to do so, without any detriment to my large business in that medicine. The foundation of my success I attribute to attending to the manufacture of one drop myself, and shall do the same in regard to my Pulmonic Life Syrup. The ingredients are perfectly harmless, but act on the Lungs and Liver with astonishing effect. Price 75 cents. Depot, No. 56 Cortlandt Street, New York, near Jersey City Ferry. Sold by the Druggists and Storekeepers. 209-4w

The Early Life of General Grant.

The New York Ledger has commenced a series of letters on the early life of General Grant. The letters are written by the General's father, and judging from the first will prove very interesting. We make the following extracts from the first:

The General comes of a good fighting stock. His great grandfather, Capt. Noah Grant, a native of Windsor, now Tolland, Conn., was killed in the battle at White Plains, in 1756; his great-grandfather's brother, Lieut. Solomon Grant, was killed in the same battle. I have in my possession an original muster roll made out by Capt. Noah Grant, in 1755—the year before his death. His own name heads it as captain; the names, dates of service and "quality" of the men are duly entered in separate columns; and, as illustrative of the sentiments of those early days, one hundred and twelve years ago, on the military aspects of color, I may quote the following designations of some of the privates: "Prince, negro," "Jupiter, negro."

Capt. Noah Grant's son, Noah Grant, also a native of Connecticut, was my father; and if he did not get killed in battle like his father sire, it was not because he did not persevieingly take all the chances of such a death, for he fought in the Revolutionary war from beginning to end—over seven years. He was a lieutenant of militia at the battle of Lexington. This long period of soldiering spoiled him for all financial business. My mother—who was his second wife—was an excellent manager; and while she lived, the family were always in comfortable circumstances; but after her death—in April, 1805—we had to separate, and that impressed upon the minds of all of us a lesson which we never forgot. She left seven children—the oldest only twelve. Every one of them subsequently became wealthy. My father was rich, and a man of education; but he died poor. His children were born poor, but all acquired a comfortable competency.

I was born in Westmoreland county, Pennsylvania, January 23, 1794. When I was five years of age, I was taken by my father, who migrated with his family, to that part of the Northwestern Territory which is now Columbiana county, Ohio. When I was ten years of age, we moved to Portage county, in the Western Reserve. At sixteen, I was regularly apprenticed to my half-brother, to learn the tanning business, at Maysville, Kentucky. I faithfully served out my apprenticeship; and, soon after I became of age, set up business for myself, at Ravenna, Portage county, Ohio.

Here I suffered a severe and protracted illness from fever and ague, which finally compelled me to relinquish business. The savings of four years were consumed by the expenses of this sickness. In 1820 I settled temporarily at a small place called Point Pleasant, situated on the Ohio river, twenty-five miles above Cincinnati; and, in June, 1820, I was married to Miss Hannah Simpson, and commenced housekeeping at that place.

Here, on the 27th day of April, 1822, our first child, Ulysses S. Grant, was born. The house in which this event occurred is still standing.

Five other children—three daughters and two sons—were subsequently added to our family. One son and one daughter, both grown and both single, died of consumption during the late war.

Industry, frugality and perseverance made me fortunate in business and enabled me to accumulate a competency for myself and my family. In 1854, at the age of sixty, I measurably retired; that is, I withdrew from the direct personal supervision of my business.

My sons, Simpson Grant—since deceased—and Orvil L. Grant—now in Chicago—continued the business for 12 years in my name, and made more than twice as much money as we had ever made before, best of leather—we tanned with nothing but oak, and that made it superior.

About two years ago, I had made up my mind that I should enjoy more seeing the principal part of my property in the possession of my children than I should keeping it in my own. Gen. Grant said he had done nothing toward making it, and he did not want any of it. The Government had provided for him so well that I acquiesced in his view. My son Orvil, who is in business in Chicago, received the larger share; and my daughters got about $25,000 apiece. I kept enough for myself.

At the time of our marriage, Mrs. Grant was an unpretending country girl; handsome, but not vain. She had previously joined the Methodist Church; and I can truthfully say that it has never had a more devoted and consistent member. Her steadiness, firmness and strength of character have been the stay of the family through life. She was always careful, and watchful over her children; but never austere, and not opposed to their free participation in innocent amusements. The leading passion of Ulysses, almost from the time he could go alone, was for horses. The first time he ever drove a horse alone, he was about seven and a half years old. I had gone away from home to Ripley, 12 miles off. I went in the morning, and did not get back until night. I owned at that time a three-year old colt, which had been ridden under the saddle to carry the mail, but never had a collar on. While I was gone, Ulysses got the colt and put a collar and the harness on him, and hitched him up to a sled. Then he put a single line on to him and drove off, and loaded up the sled with brush and came back again. He kept at it, hauling successive loads all day, and when I came home at night, he had a pile of brush as big as a cabin.

He used to harness horses when he had to get up in the manger to put the bridle and collar on, and then turn the half bushed over and stand on that to throw the harness on.

At eight and a half years of age he had become a regular driver, and used to work my team all day, day after day, hauling wood. There would be a man in the woods to load, and another at the house to unload, but Ulysses would drive the team.

Once, when he was a boy, a show came along in which there was a mischievous pony, trained to go round the ring like lightning, and he was expected to throw any boy that attempted to ride him.

"Will any boy come forward and ride this pony?" shouted the ring master.

Ulysses stepped forward, and mounted the pony. The performance began. Round, and round, and round the ring went the pony, faster and faster, making the greatest efforts to dismount the rider. But Ulysses sat as steady as though he had grown to the pony's back. Presently out came a large monkey and sprang up behind Ulysses. The people set up a great shout of laughter, and on the pony ran; but it all produced no effect on the rider. Then the ring-master made the monkey jump up to Ulysses' shoulders, standing with his feet on his shoulders, and with his hand holding on to his hair. At this there was another and a still louder shout, but not a muscle of Ulysses' face moved. There was not a tremor of his nerves. A few more rounds and the ring-master gave it up; he had come across a boy that the pony and the monkey both could not dismount.

Ulysses had the habit of rising our horses to water standing up on their bare backs. He began this practice when about five years old. At eight or nine he would ride them at the top of their speed, he standing upon one foot and balancing himself by the bridle reins. The ground over which he used to make these performances was a little descending toward the river; a near neighbor's boy, who undertook to rival him in speed, although without standing up, was unfortunately thrown from his horse and killed.

When Ulysses was in his twelfth year he was very small for his age. At that time I had taken the contract to build the jail in Brown county. The prison part was to be of logs twenty a foot square and fourteen feet long. These had to be hauled about two miles from the woods where they were cut, to the site of the jail. I generally worked small, or rather medium sized horses, but I happened to have one very large one. A neighbor had another about the same size, and Ulysses was so anxious that I should buy him that he said to me one day: "Father, if you will buy that horse I will drive team until all the logs are hauled." I agreed to do it, but without any idea that he could possibly hold out to work the team over a week—he was such a little bit of a fellow. I even hired another man to work the team, and told him to go along with Ulysses; but not to let him know until the boy was tired out, what he was hired for. The man accompanied him for a number of days, when he came to and said: "There is no use in my going with that boy any longer; he understands the team and can manage it as well as I can, and better too. There's no use in my following him round."

One day, after hauling a load, Ulysses took the team out, and said to me: "The men are not in the woods hewing to day, and there is no need of my going back this afternoon, as I can keep up with their hewing to-morrow, and there is nobody there to help load."

"Nobody there to help load?" said I. "Why, how did you load this morning?"

"Oh, Dave and I loaded," he answered.

Dave was the name of the big horse I had bought.
